SOCIAL SCIENCE

Start small... go far with Dakota College at Bottineau.

At DCB, the Associate of Arts (AA) in Social Science degree is designed for those who desire to learn the most about the human experience in today's world. The study of social sciences encompasses many disciplines, including an emphasis on history, psychology and the arts and humanities. Students will explore a greater global society and graduate with an understanding of their place in it. Class sizes are small and contact

Why study social science?

The completion of the social science degree allows students to better understand the world around them, no matter their future career path. Requirements for the Associate of Arts degree requires completion of the following classes: United States History, Sociology, Psychology, World Civilizations, World Geography and Economics. Graduates will also leave with the ability to utilize primary resources and construct thesis based written work in several disciplines.

Career choices

Graduates with an AA in Social Science have many choices for future study and eventual careers. The study of these subjects allows for a better understanding of current human systems in several different fields. Of course, many students of social sciences desire to explore the world of teaching any disciplines in the field, and this is a great first step. This major is also excellent primary preparation for the completion of a bachelor's degree in the field of criminal justice.

The following are examples of future paths graduates can follow:

- Teaching (middle school or high school)
- Teaching (post-secondary)
- Journalism
- Counseling
- Criminal justice
- Ministry
- Law school
- Graduate programs in social science majors

“My experience with the history program at DCB has been fantastic. Professor Sathre always finds ways to make material fun and easy to learn. Taking many classes in the history program at DCB has strengthened my love for history and confirmed my plans of becoming a history teacher!”
